Seymour and Blair Accept.

NEW YORK, July 10.

The committee designated by the National Democratic Convention to present the nomination to candidates, performed the duty assigned them this evening at Tammam Hall, in the presence of a great concourse of spectators.

Gen. Morgan, of Ohio, chairman of the committee, in a brief and appropriate address, made a formal tender of the nominations to Gov. Seymour and Gen. Blair.

Gov. Seymour replied as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: I thank you for the courteous terms in which you have communicated to me the action of the Democratic National Convention. [Cheers] I have no words adequate to express my gratitude for the good will and kindness which that body has shown to me. Its nomination was unthought and unexpected. It was my ambition to take an active part, from which I am now excluded, in the great struggle going on for the restoration of good government, of peace and prosperity to our country. [Great cheering.] But I have been caught up by the overwhelming tide that is bearing us to a great political change,

and find myself unable to resist its pressure. [Loud cheers.]

Miscellaneous.

[From the Frankfort Yeoman.]

Organize.

We would call the especial attention of every Democrat in Kentucky to the importance of a prompt and thorough organization of the party throughout the State.

Of course it is not that we have any apprehensions as to the result in this State that we would urge the Democracy to arouse and go to work; but it is because of the overwhelming strength of the party that they deem it the more important. Everyone knows that Kentucky is Democratic by such a majority as that defeat is impossible, and consequently tens of thousands of Democrats may remain at home on election day and trust the election to others. This state of case should not be allowed to come to pass.

They are in accord with my wish and I stand upon them in the contest into which we are now entering, and I shall strive to carry them out in the future, whether I may be placed in public or private life.

[Cheers.] I congratulate you and all conservative men who seek to restore order, peace, prosperity and good government to our land, upon the evidences everywhere shown, that we are to triumph at the next election. [Prolonged applause.]

Those who are politically opposed to us flattered themselves that there would be discord in our councils. They mistook the uncertainties of our views as to the best methods of carrying out our purposes for differences of opinion with regard to those purposes. They mistook an intense anxiety to do no act which should not be wise and judicious for a spirit of discord. But during the lengthy proceedings and earnest discussions of the Convention there has prevailed an entire harmony of intercourse, a patient forbearance, and a self-sacrificing spirit which are the sure tokens

of a coming victory.

Accept for yourselves, gentlemen, my wishes for your future welfare and happiness.

[Cheers.] In a few days I will answer the communication you have just handed me, by letter, as is the customary form. [Tremendous and long continued cheering.]

GEN. BLAINE'S SPEECH.

I accept the platform and resolutions passed by the late Democratic Convention.

And, sir, I thank you for the very kind manner in which you have conveyed to me

the decision of the Convention. I accept the nomination with the feeling that your nomination for the Presidency is one which will carry us to certain victory, [applause]

and because I believe that nomination is the most appropriate that could be made by the Democratic party.

The full strength of the Democracy polled in Kentucky in August—running the majority for Governor Stevenson up to 80,000 or 100,000 as it would do—will be of unmeasurable value by way of inspiring the Democracy in those States whose voice is to be heard after we shall have spoken. It is a lamentable fact that we have gone to sleep in Kentucky. Lulled by the immensity of our majority and the certainty of success, we have not taken a single step toward party organization.

Not a speaker, save the gallant Wolford,

is on the stump. An universal lethargy prevails.

This must no longer be. We call on Democrats everywhere to arouse and enter-spirit into the canvass for the returning few weeks that are left us.

We call upon the State Central Committee to take immediate steps for the holding of mass meetings in every quarter of the State. Let Democratic candidates everywhere announce lists of appointments

embracing their entire field; let County and District Committees see that the bounds under their charge are speedily and thoroughly canvassed, and let no Democratic voter be allowed to remain away from the polls on the first Monday of August.

We trust Governor Stevenson will at once take the stump, and now that the issues are so well made up, let us have a short, sharp, and decisive campaign. Up, guards, and at 'em!

The Latest Radical Conspiracy.

The bill for countering the electoral votes in the Southern States has passed both Houses of Congress and been sent to the President. It is the crowning act of Radical infamy. It provides in substance that none of the States lately in rebellion shall be entitled to representation in the electoral College for choice of President and Vice President of the United States and that no electoral votes shall be received or counted from such States, unless at the time appointed for the choice of electors, the people of such States, in accordance with the acts of Congress, shall have since the 4th of March, 1867, adopted a Constitution of State government, under which a State government shall have been organized and shall be in operation, and unless such election of electors shall have been held under the authority of such Constitution and government and such State shall have also become entitled to representation in Congress, pursuant to the acts passed in that behalf.

In plain words, it enacts that no Southern State shall vote for President and Vice President in November, and should any vote the vote will not be counted unless such State shall have been baptized in the waters of Congressional reconstruction. Under this bill, Mississippi, Virginia, Texas and several other States can have no voice in the election of our rulers in November. Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina and Arkansas will be entitled to take part in the election, the carpet-bag Legislatures of these States having adopted the Fourteenth Amendment and their right to representation being recognized by the imperial Rump. Georgia has had the audacity even under the scalawag rule, to select a Democratic Legislature, and this is too great a crime to allow her to take any part in the political contest. Under the operation of this bill it is therefore highly probable, nay, almost certain, that but six of the Southern States can have any voice in the selection of the next President.

The object of this measure is too transparent to impose upon the most near-sighted. It is a political trick to secure the election of Grant and Colfax by throwing out of the electoral College every Southern Democratic State. It was conceived, in despotism and in despotism brought forth. Every feature of it is despotic.

We cannot believe that the Democratic party intends to be defeated by any such means and that it will tamely submit to such flagrant outrage. If Grant is elected by such devices, his inauguration should be resisted by force. Rather than abandon the doctrine that political power in this country belongs to white men and white men alone, it would be preferable to witness the horrors of another war. The Radicals have made the issue by this bill and it is the duty of the Democracy to meet it squarely. The supremacy of the white race must be maintained or we sink beneath the rigors and barbarism of negro domination.

Opposition to Judge Peters.

Major George W. Williams, of Paris, is the Radical candidate for Appellate Judge in this District. We are informed in his circular that the "Union Central Committee" nominated him. He regrets his inability to canvass the District, which we take to be a wise resolution. His chances for overwhelming defeat are brilliant, whether he goes out or stays at home, the same destiny awaits him. He runs merely to keep up appearances. The Radical organization is unwilling to see 'anything go by default.'

Radical Fairness.
Major Williams is a courtly and dignified gentleman, and highly esteemed in all the relations of life for his honor, integrity and piety. He is we believe a native of Bourbon county. As a lawyer, he has never ranked high in his profession, and has never been known for his legal attainments outside of his county, and not even known enthusiastically there. He is distinguished more for the saunter in modo than the fortiter in re. He is a Radical of the first water and a supporter of Grant and Colfax. He has no claims whatever on the Democracy.

Let every Democrat see to it that his vote is recorded for Judge Peters on the first Monday in August. He is a Democrat of the Jeffersonian school. He is a lawyer of large experience and ability. He has served the State with eminent fidelity for eight years and made a reputation as a jurist co-extensive with the State. His industry, his impartiality and his love for constitutional liberty and law mark him as a man eminently qualified for the high station which he now enjoys and which he is certain to enjoy again. We need just such men as Judge Peters at this crisis, when the foundations of the law are being overthrown. We have no use for revolutionists.

The action of Congress in this matter is a piece of partisan meanness and littleness in keeping with Congressional character or rather with its want of character.

Thomas M. Green.

This gentleman is fully able to defend himself from any aspersions cast upon the genuineness of his Democracy; but as he has many warm friends in Montgomery county who admire his talents and courage for the right, we deem it but just to him to say a few words in answer to the charge that he is no Democrat, which has been so laboriously presented by journals even outside of the limits of our District. If service in the rebel army and sympathy with the Confederate cause constitute Democracy, as some even now think, then Mr. Green is no Democrat. Throughout the war, just as Seymour and Blair, he was for a vigorous prosecution of the war, the suppression of the rebellion and the integrity of the Union upon the basis of the Crittenden resolutions. If opposition to Radicalism in all of its forms, if attachment to republican institutions, if love for the Constitution and hope for the perpetuity of the Union constitute Democracy, then Mr. Green yields to no man in Kentucky.

He will support Seymour and Blair for President and Vice President, Stevenson for Governor and Peters for Judge of the Appellate Court. His paper week after week speaks clearly and boldly for the right, for justice and Constitution. No man is more opposed than he to the heresies of Radicalism. More than one year ago the people of this District heard him combat them on the stump with McKee. His sound and conservative views may be read in the columns of his able paper. On all present issues, he is in full accord with what is now known as the Democratic party, and it has no abler champion than he.

The people of the Ninth District have full confidence in the ability, sincerity and patriotism of Mr. Green, and would be proud of him as a representative in Congress, although his record during the war may be too strong for the Union to suit the stomachs of a few malcontents who are ready to proscribe every man that did not shoulder a musket in the rebel ranks.

There is no preference within the gift of the Democracy of the Ninth District of which Mr. Green is not worthy, and to whatever place he may be called he will receive our cheerful support.

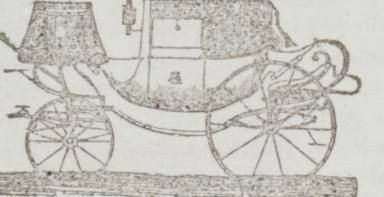

Among the many evidences of Mr. Green's thorough identification with the Democratic party, we take the following from a late number of his paper, commenting on the New York platform and concluding with an appeal to Kentuckians. We command the broad, manly and catholic spirit of his utterances to that narrow-minded bigotry that sees no merit in any man who stood for the Union:

The platform has the ring of the true metal. It conveys no uncertain sound. It commands itself to the approbation of all who love the country. With such men as Seymour and Blair, upon such a platform, victory is possible. May God send success to a people well near brought to ruin by radical recklessness, extravagance and hate.

The Bearing of Amnesty on Disfranchisement.

We have heard many inquiries on this subject and take pleasure in presenting to our readers the following views from the Louisville Journal. They are able and forcible presented and exhaust the subject. They will well repay perusal.

Southern Rulers.

The recently elected Governors of the Southern States are all Northern men—Bullock, of Georgia, is from New York; Clayton, of Arkansas, from Pennsylvania; Reed, of Florida, from Wisconsin; Warmon, of Louisiana, from Illinois; Scott, of South Carolina, from Pennsylvania and Ohio; the Governor proposed for Mississippi is one Eggleston, from Ohio, and Wells, to be voted for in Virginia, is a Michigander. The South is given over completely to the carpet-baggers and the negroes. All these men, who have by fraud and rascality, been elevated to the highest places in the Southern governments are men without character and reputation, mere adventurers, the scum and refuge of the North, who have taken advantage of the tide of anarchy to ride into power.—Loving self above every object, using the negro simply as a convenient hobby to raise them up, they are unfit as rulers of even barbarians. And yet, under the beautiful policy of reconstruction, these men, who knew nothing of the character and temper of the people whom they govern, who have no affection for them beyond the plunder they may steal, who are of the meanest class of unadulterated yankies, are called upon by terrorism and bayonet to preside over the destinies of a great people. Was there ever such oppression? Such mockery of free government? The ablest men and the first intellects of the South are excluded from political trust, and denied any share in the government; disfranchised and deprived of every political right. Natives to the soil, well acquainted with the disposition and feelings of their fellow-citizens, distinguished, many of them, by a long career of brilliant and patriotic service; loved and trusted by those whose interests they have always so carefully guarded, they are set aside under the rigors of a new and appalling despotism, and jail-birds, scalawags, thieves, swindlers, knaves and beggars from the North, are preferred and honored under the kindly and beneficent auspices of reconstruction.

The Bureau. This useless and cumbersome and expensive piece of government machinery in Kentucky, under recent orders, has been considerably abridged. Most of the drawers have been closed. Nobody would grieve over its total abolition. It has accomplished nothing in Kentucky. It has been productive of immense injury to the negro. It consumed his hard earnings and was an engine of oppression. At first Sambo had a great curiosity to see the Bureau, but when he found out that every peep cost him five or ten dollars, he became very shy of the institution. No class will rejoice more than the colored population that this nuisance has been abated.

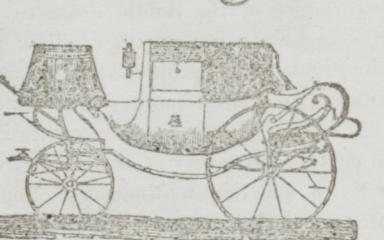

Gen. Grant is so fatigued by the impious ovations that greeted him along his route from Washington, that he has halted near St. Louis for rest. He has not strength enough for his Western tour.—The people should not crowd upon him this warm weather.

If Grant is not killed by spontaneous combustion before November, the wrath of an outraged and indignant people will consume him then.

Grant's Maysville speech is said to have been carefully written and committed to memory before he left Washington city. In what a fix he would have been had his old "school-mate" been absent! It would have spoiled the major part of his oration!

THE SENTINEL.

THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1868.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

ED Elder A. C. Williams will preach at New Lulbegrud next Sabbath.

ED Fresh supply of Dickens Collars at Frank, Gump & Co's.

ED We have upon our table a stool of rye grown upon the farm of Caswell Prentiss in this county, containing fifty-three fully matured stalks from one grain.

ED Mrs. N. P. Reid will please accept our thanks for a mess of "roasting ears" sent us a few days ago. They were greatly relished.

ED Farmers satin vests at Frank, Gump & Co's.

ED Hon. J. M. Elliott and Robert Riddle, Esq., will address the people of Montgomery on Monday next. Every body is invited to attend.

ED M. C. O'Connell has now in store a large stock of fresh family groceries, which he will sell as cheap as any house in this section for cash.

SUDDEN DEATH.—An old gentleman named Fleming Garrett died suddenly of heart disease at his residence on Peeled Oak, in Bath county, on Wednesday night last.

ED Hon. J. D. Young paid our office a visit on Monday last. The Judge was looking well, notwithstanding his shameful treatment by the unscrupulous majority of the Rump Congress.

ED Black lustre coats at Frank, Gump & Co's.

ED The United Brethren of Friendship, a colored organization of this town, turned out on Friday last to bury Zack Cromwell, a member of their order. They had a large procession and made a very genteel appearance.

Don't whip the devil round the stump, Don't call our present Congress "Rum," But buy your clothing of Frank Gump, And the gals will call you sugar Lump.

SOMETHING NEW.—W. T. Geers has opened a carriage, buggy and furniture repairing establishment on Water street in this town, where he is prepared to do any work in his line in good style, and on short notice.

ED H. C. Thompson has now on hand a large stock of saddles, harness &c., of his own manufacture. Henry is a No. 1 workman himself and has none but good workmen in his employ. Persons in want of anything in his line should give him a call.

ED There was considerable benzine, punished on Monday last. Joe Edwards of Bath was lodged in jail, and was up before Esquire Hoffmeyer on Tuesday morning and fined ten dollars and costs for disorderly conduct.

ED Monday last was country court day. Notwithstanding the intense heat, there was a large crowd in town. There was considerable stock upon the market, mostly mountain cattle. Several lots were put up and withdrawn. We understand prices were low.

ED The pic-nic, given by the Sons of Temperance, on Saturday last passed off very pleasantly. Owing to the intense heat, the crowd in attendance was small, but all seemed to enjoy themselves. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Chas. W. Price and Dr. Thorsley.

ED We are informed that the yield of wheat in this county will not average more than about five bushels per acre. The oats crop is the finest that has been raised in this section for a number of years. Corn looks well, and with a fair season the crop will be heavy.

A CHANGE.—Our clever young friend Charley Lindsey, we see, has taken the place of Mr. Harris behind the counter of the Kentucky Hotel in this place. Charley is a clever young gentleman, of agreeable manners and pleasant address, and will use his utmost endeavors to make the guests of the house comfortable. He informs us that the bar attached to the hotel has been newly stocked with a choice lot of liquors, cigars, &c., and no one knows better than he how to fix them up.

ED We call attention to the advertisement of Dr. Moore, Dentist, Owingsville, Ky. The Dr. has had a great deal of experience in his profession, and guarantees satisfaction in all cases. His prices are as reasonable as those of any other first-class Dentist.

CIRCUS.—It will be seen by an advertisement that the Great American Exposition Circus and Trained Animals will give two exhibitions in this town on Thursday, the 30th inst. The Philadelphia Ledger says of this company: "The principal attractions of this exhibition seems to be in the great brilliancy of its appointments, the beauty and fine training of the stock, and the large number of animals, wild and tame, having been instructed in a great variety of curious performances, and brought to the highest perfection." Other exchanges speak in the highest terms of this company. Remember the day, and lay up your postal currency.

ED J. P. Alexander, called the "Cattle King" of Illinois, owns over seventy-five thousand head of cattle.

Judge Cassidy for Congress.
Mt. Sterling, July 18, 1868.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

DEAR SIR—As the names of several gentlemen of acknowledged ability have been mentioned in the papers of this District as proper persons to represent us in the next Congress, without any disparagement of their claims, I wish not only to mention in that connection the name of our County Judge, Hon. M. M. Cassidy, but to call upon him through your columns to allow his name to be used before a Democratic Convention, to be held on some future day, in this District for the purpose of nominating a candidate for that position. I deem it essential that the Democracy of the District should hold a Convention for that purpose. The fact that Judge Young has announced himself as a candidate, subject to the decision of a Democratic Convention, should satisfy every one that he is willing to be controlled by the wishes of his party in the District, and that if some other person than himself be nominated, he will most cheerfully support the nominee.

Judge Cassidy is known to be an Old Line Democrat of fixed principles. He has boldly and fearlessly advocated the principles of his party at all times and under all circumstances. In the civil war through which we have just passed, with all of its sorrows and bloodshed, and the strong inducements to leave the principles of Democracy, did not lessen his devotion to the party or cause him to desert its principles. He is an able debater and understands perfectly the history of his party, having made it his study for many years. There are few men in the District better qualified for the position than Judge Cassidy. He has made us a faithful and efficient County Judge, and we know him to be a sound lawyer and a true gentleman. There are very few better speakers in the District than he. It does not matter who the Radicals may nominate, he will be able to debate the political issues of the day with him.

Respectfully yours, T.

Andrew Johnson.

We have an exalted opinion of Mr. Johnson; we deem him one of the ablest Presidents which the United States has ever had, and the state papers issued by him from time to time, have never been excelled by any of his predecessors. We know that vials of wrath have been poured out upon his head from the Press all over the land, yet he has moved quietly along, performing the functions of his high office as he conceived in direct accordance with the Constitution, which he had sworn to protect. He has been violently assailed by the leading partisans of every political party, all over the nation, yet he has gone bravely on, almost without a party, and without an advocate. But we ask now, does not the whole policy of Mr. Johnson entitle him to the highest respect and warmest gratitude of every lover of constitutional liberty in this country? Does not his administration command itself to the Democratic party, and especially to the down-trodden people of the South, since he has been the best friend the South ever had, for when there was "none so poor to do them reverence," he threw himself into the breach, the sole bulwark against Radical oppression, and against which the hell-hounds of impeachment spent their fury and made their war in vain.

Say what you please about Andrew Johnson's political antecedents, he has certainly done enough to receive the hearty approval of the entire South, and his proclamation of the 4th of July, 1868, caps the climax of his Presidential career, and writes his name high as a statesman and patriot, beyond the foul calum of his adversaries! But some might add, why did he not do all this before? Simply because the time had not arrived for action, and who doubts that if he had, he would have been hurled from his seat in the White House, with but the semblance and mockery of a trial. We must appreciate the fact that what he has done, all along through his term, has been done without a party, and without political backers.—Johnson is certainly a man of the people, and history will accord to him a proud place in the catalogue of American statesmen.

Josh Billings' Essa Onto Hogs.
Hogs generally are quadruped.

The extreme length of their antiquity has never been fully discovered; they existed a long time before the flood, and have existed sum time since.

There is a great deal of internal revenue in a hog; there ain't much more waste in them than in an oyster.

Even these tales can be worked up into whiskeys.

Hogs are good, quiet borders; they always eat what is set before 'em, and don't ask any foolish questions.

They never hav any disease but the measles, and they never hav that but once; once seems to satisfy 'em.

There is a great many breeds amongst them.

Some are a close corporashun breed, and agin sum are built more apart, like a hemlock slab.

They used to hav a breed in New England, a few years ago, which they called the striped-hog breed; this breed was in high repute with the landlords; almost ev'ry tavern-keeper had one which he used to show travelers, and brag on him.

Some are full in the face, like a town clock, and some are as long and lean as a cow-catcher with a steel-pointed nose onto them.

They kan all rute well; a hog which can't rute well hez been made in vain.

They are a short-lived animal, and generally die as soon as they get fat.

The hog can be larnt a great many cunning things, such as husting the front gate off from its hinges, tipping over the swill barrels, and finding a hole in the fence tew git into a cornfield; but that aint any length to their memory; it is awful hard work for them to find the same hole tew git out at, especially if you are any ways anxious they should.

Hogs are very contrary, and seldom drive well the same way you are going; they drive most the contrary way. This has never been fully explained, but speaks volumes for the hog.

Female Bores.

Perhaps there is not, after chastity, a quality which men more highly appreciate in the women with whom they undertake to live, than this negative virtue of not being bores. And this may be easily accounted for, especially in the cases of men who have led home lives previous to their marriage; who have not, through much tribulation, such as hardships abroad and lack of sympathy from strangers, learnt to yearn for the loving kindness that was tedious when experienced daily.

The lives of women whose interests are narrowed to the domestic circle, whose routine is a portion, religiously guarded, of their respectability, whose very industry being chiefly needlework of a more or less useful nature, fosters the habit of thinking, which becomes pernicious when thought dwells solely on themselves and their own—the lives of such women, however harmless and pure they may be, must of strong necessity tend to their becoming bores to all such as have a broader mental outlook. The habit of dwelling on trifles, of becoming prolix about details, and garrulous about the most painful topic the immediate neighborhood supplies, is not a specialty perhaps of the country lady who has run in the same groove all her life; but it is undoubtedly a well marked attribute of hers. Her more cosmopolitan sisters may possess it, but not in the same degree. She has learned to think too deeply, and to speak too much about what is purely local. So she bores those who are beyond the local mind, as her brother or husband and sons very often are—bores them into the mistaken belief that her mind is narrower than theirs, simply because hers has never been given the space to expand in.—The Dower House.

Sir William Hamilton, one of the greatest thinkers of the age, after a long life of profound study, closes his labors with this humble confession:

There are two sorts of ignorance; we philosophize to escape ignorance, and the consummation of our philosophy is ignorance; we start from the one, we repose in the other; they are the goals from which and to which we tend; and the pursuit of knowledge is but a course between two ignorances, as human life is only a traveling from grave to grave. The highest teach of human science is the scientific recognition of human ignorance.

ANECDOTE OF JOHN RANDOLPH.—Randolph was in a tavern, lying on a sofa in the parlor, waiting for the stage to come to the door. A dandified chap stepped into the room with a whip in his hand, just come from a drive, and standing before the mirror, arranged his hair and collar, quite unconscious of the presence of the gentleman on the sofa. After attitudinizing awhile, he turned to go out when Mr. Randolph asked him—

"Has the stage come?"

"Stage, sir! Stage!" said the sep.— "I've nothing to do with it, sir."

"Oh! I beg your pardon," said Randolph, quietly, "I thought you were the driver." —Ex.

Basil thinks that about these times, judging by the gloomy way in which people talk, there is a tight in the affairs of men which does not lead on to fortune, no matter when taken.
